Sensible mothers have learned how to keep skin from chapping

THE delicate skin of a child was never meant to be rough, reddened, chapped and cracked. Tender skin receives tender care from loving mothers.

Mothers who know Lifebuoy tell us that its constant use in winter keeps the skin soft, smooth and healthy.

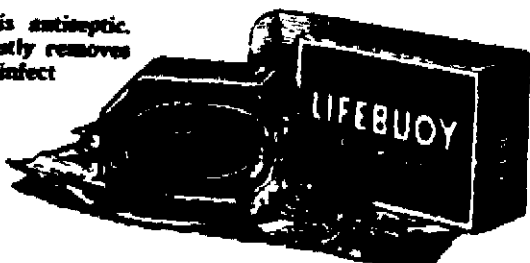

Lifebuoy is pure. Its creamy lather cleanses without removing natural skin oils. It soothes and softens.

And because it is antiseptic, Lifebuoy lather gently removes germs which might infect broken skin.

You know, too, that colds are caused by germs which are carried to nose or mouth, usually by the hands.

If children will use Lifebuoy when they get up, before meals, after play or school and before going to bed, they will avoid many colds and their skin will be radiantly healthy.

STORING VITAMINS

The average healthy person stores up within the body several days' supply of essential vitamins. This explains why a well-nourished person of any age is less susceptible to germ-infection than those who are malnourished.

Scott's Emulsion

Is a safety-factor that helps keep you well-nourished. A very little used daily to complement the regular diet, activates with essential vitamins and helps build resistance.

Store up a reserve of essential vitamins—take Scott's regularly.

BOICEVILLE.

Boiceville, Feb. 5.—Edward Beadle and daughter Philinda, and Julian Eckert were in Kingston Monday on business.

Martin Every has purchased a new car.

Miss Sarah Fenney and friend of Kingston, spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fenney.

Raymond Bailey, Ashokan, called on Robert Hogan Monday to transact business.

Mrs. William Ruler and daughter spent the weekend at their home in Cold Brook.

Mr. Beadle has returned to school after recovering from the mumps.

The many friends of Mrs. Jack Beahrdt hope soon to hear of her recovery.

"Shall Out"

The expression, "shall out," means out with your stuff or money, pay up.

The situation is to the disadvantage of certain countries, for instance, the conversion, certain small states and some in southern Asia and on the coast of Guinea in Africa as a common currency or medium of exchange. In the Philippines islands other states were formerly used for coin.

Another Hudson River Bridge

A move for a new highway bridge over the Hudson river at a point between Poughkeepsie and Albany was made in the legislature Thursday. A measure introduced by Assemblyman Louis F. Harder, Republican, of Columbia county, provides for a commission to be created by the legislature "to investigate the desirability of another bridge across the Hudson between Albany and Poughkeepsie."

Hudson, in Columbia county, which Assemblyman Harder represents, will make a determined bid to convince the proposed commission that there is a necessity for such a bridge and that it should be constructed in the vicinity of Hudson.

Both Governor Smith and Lieutenant Governor Seymour Lowman have suggested the necessity of new bridges across the Hudson between Poughkeepsie and Albany. The proposed commission would include two senators, three assemblymen, Colonel Frederick Stuart Greene, state superintendent of public works, and State Engineer Roy G. Finch. An appropriation of $5,000 is asked to pay the expenses of the proposed bridge commission.

"THEY ARE WEARING"—
Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.
IN NEW YORK.

Delicate shades which include the creamy and nude tints as well as mauve and warm beige are being worn in goodly proportion these evenings.

In addition to these pastels which presage spring, the greens, reds and white which have been constantly popular during the winter are much in evidence.

A linking up of gown and accessory in a rather unusual manner was seen at a smart dance, when large beaded pointes on the gown were matched by flowers posed at either side of the head.

A variation of a gown which is formed wide diagonal stripes, usually done with the fabric on the reverse, was noted in a tawny, yellow shade in velvet and crepe satin. One of the bands terminated in a side train which the wearer slung over her arm.

Flounced skirts are popular in the evening, frequently in circular effects as well as in pleats.

Necklines achieve more and more interest, and smart women frequently choose one-sided treatments, the square neckline strapped with the fabric on one side and with an invisible flesh net on the other.

A white velvet frock which was devoid of trimming, had a neckline which was frankly diagonal, the high shoulder finished with a large flat bow and long trailing ends.

Ostrich trimming is still well liked usually in borders, but also finishing capes and aprons. The ombre effects in decoration of this genre are important.

Knowledge and Enjoyment

What we love to do, that we do well. To know is not all; it is only half. To love is the other half. Wordsworth's poet was contented if he might enjoy the things which others understand. This is generally the attitude of the young and of the poetic nature. The man of science, on the other hand, is contented if he may understand the things that others enjoy; that is his enjoyment. Contemplation and absorption for the one, investigation and classification for the other. We probably all have, in varying degrees, one or other of these ways of enjoying Nature: either the sympathetic and emotional enjoyment of her which the young and the artistic and the poetic temperament have, or the enjoyment through our knowing faculties afforded by natural science, or it may be, the two combined, as they certainly were in such a man as Tyndall.—John Burroughs.

An Honorable Form

The essay is a literary creature to the making of which good mood and form; and the former would seem by far the paramount thing. Great and special gifts does it demand. This an Ariel among literary kinds, airy, tricky, elusive, vanishing in the garish light that beats down upon the arena where the big prizes of fiction are competed for amidst noise, confusion, and eclat. But even in its own slight, winsome way does it compel attention, and gain hearts for its very own. 'Tis an aristocrat of letters; nowhere is it so hard to hide obvious antecedents. Many try but few triumph in it. Therefore, when a real essayist arrives, let him be received with due acclaim and thanks special, since through him is handed on so sacred and honorable a form.—Richard Burton, in "Forces in Fiction."

Academics

An Zola did not belong to the French academy, as Theodore Dreiser, the author of "Rise and Fall," does not belong to the American Academy of Arts and Letters. "Whistler," Mr. Dreiser said at an Algonquin luncheon, "was great. Whistler did not belong to the Royal academy, either."

"An American admirer of Whistler's work wrote him a letter in the Royal academy's name. The letter had a hard time to find Whistler, but it did find him at last. On the envelope the Royal academy people had maliciously written:

"Not known at the Royal academy."

"Whistler sent the envelope to the Times with the comment:

"Behind my coronation of merit."

"HALF-WAY FROM KNEE TO ANKLE"—PARIS EDITION

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

Half-way between the knee and the ankle is the skirt length accepted and approved in Paris—only the very young, or the very daring attempting anything shorter. So it appears to be also in America.

How to keep the extremities warm enough without resorting to woolen hose is a question of timely interest. Wool hose are smart in their proper element—certainly not with dress-up clothes—if such be still worn. Paris approves a finely speckled wool hose, combined sometimes with silk—approves it for the tailored costume or for sports.

In the gossamer silks, which are necessary to chic with formal frocks, nude colorings have a tendency to deepen to beige, and cinnamon for street wear, and to assume a more golden hue for evening. For evening one's choice is either metal kids or satin slippers which have a color relationship to the dress with which they are worn.

Golden brown, blonde, putty and oak are some of the shoe colorings reported not only for Paris wear, but for the Riviera, so that women in America planning for a Florida or California sojourn should bear in mind that the French approve tones of brown in footwear as in frocks. (Copyright, 1925, Fairchild.)

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A Pretty Party Frock For Mother's Girl.

1969. Lace and chiffon are here combined, but the style may also be developed in other materials. Two colors of chiffon, or chiffon on net would be attractive. Or tulle and crepe de chine, or figured silk and tulle would be quaint and pleasing.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. An 8 year size requires 1 1/2 yards of 32 inch material for the slip or underdress, and 2 1/2 yards of figured material, if made as illustrated. If made of one material 4 yards will be required.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Pattern Book Notice

Sent 16c in coin or stamps to The Freeman for our up-to-date spring and summer 1925 Book of Patterns, showing color plates, and containing 100 designs of ladies', misses' and children's patterns, a complete and comprehensive article on dressmaking, also some points for the needle (illustration 30 of the various stitches), all valuable hints to the home dressmaker.

Half the world is half asleep

It is terrible to feel all dragged out—to live from one day to the next in a constant state of weariness. Yet thousands do, because constipation is destroying their energy—even their interest in life. Only Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brings sure and safe relief from this disease.

"Nothing seemed to interest her"

BY THE end of the second act she wished she were home in bed. She was tired—always tired. That fact showed in her face. And "she" may be multiplied by tens of thousands of women in America. For it was the world's most universal disease that was sapping her strength and killing her interest. . . . It is good to know that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN has brought permanent relief to thousands of sufferers from constipation.

When ALL-BRAN travels through the system, its fiber remains unchanged. Therefore, it can sweep the intestine clean. It can absorb and carry moisture through the intestinal tract and stimulate it to natural, healthy action. ALL-BRAN is what doctors call a bulk food.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is delightful with milk or cream, sprinkled over other cereals; cooked with hot cereals; in soups, or made into the many recipes given on every package. If eaten regularly, it is guaranteed to bring permanent relief or the grocer returns the purchase price. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal.

Be sure to get Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Only ALL-BRAN brings sure results. You can see that a part-bran product can, at best, be but partially effective.

Kellogg's is the original and only ALL-BRAN. It is the bran which doctors recommend. Accept no other if you would be sure. All grocers sell it. Leading hotels and restaurants serve it. Buy a package of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN today.

The plans of Waterloo bridge, however, have been given to rise and fall with the tide. The amount of movement is from one to three-eighths of an inch. It extends for some distance north and south of the river, and a question arises whether certain structural requirements of the whole nature of St. Paul's cathedral may be of 'ideal' or 'real'.

GOOD ROADS

LINCOLN HIGHWAY IN ILLINOIS IS PAVED

The Lincoln highway for 165 miles across Lincoln's state is now all paved. The last stretch, near Joliet, was thrown open to the public recently and through traffic now rolls on smooth concrete across the state which ten years ago bore the reputation of having as bad roads as any in the Union.

Illinois has not stopped with the paving of the Lincoln highway. Frank T. Sheets, state superintendent of highways, says that without doubt the state highway department will soon complete 1,000 miles of concrete road and that 800 additional miles of pavement will be constructed by the counties under the supervision of the state, thus shattering all previous construction records in the United States. At the peak of the season over 9,750 men and 2,475 teams were employed directly on state road construction and close to 60 miles of new concrete pavement were being completed every week with 108 paving mixers.

In commenting on the spectacular record made in Illinois Col. C. R. Miller, director of the department of public works and buildings, said:

"Each week brings Illinois closer to the solution of her transportation problem. The roads Illinois is building start somewhere and go somewhere. A few years ago the finger of shame was pointed at Illinois, one of the most progressive states in the Union, as ranking twenty-third in road improvement. No longer can this charge be made. Illinois will not only surpass the world in mileage of pavement completed annually but also in the total mileage of pavement in the state."

New Highways Now Being Built Will Link Nation

An accomplishment is soon to be realized whereby the large cities of the nation will be linked up by a network of improved highways which will, at the same time, take in all cities and towns of any importance.

An analysis of the improved highway system for 35 states shows that of 1,100 cities of more than 5,000 population, all but 50 lie directly in the path of the system, and it is said that at least 90 per cent of the total population live within 10 miles of some route on these highways.

An outstanding achievement in this direction has been the work done in selecting the roads to constitute the federal aid highway system. This has been done in accordance with the provisions of the federal highway act, which require that a system of roads consisting of not more than 7 per cent of the total rural mileage in each state be designated, and that all federal aid be spent on such a system.

Intensive Inspection of All Concrete Highways

The highway research board of the National Research council, of which Charles M. Upham is director, is conducting an intensive inspection of reinforced concrete roads throughout the United States which have been in service for at least five years, with reference to all sorts of climatic and traffic conditions.

From this survey an effort will be made to determine the influence of steel reinforcement on the resistance of the slab to traffic, subgrade and climatic conditions; the conditions under which steel reinforcement is especially beneficial to concrete slabs; the effect of the slab design on the efficiency of the reinforcement; the relative initial cost and annual maintenance and renewal charges of plain and reinforced concrete roads.

Hundred-Foot Road May Link Capital and South

A national 100-foot-wide highway from Washington, D. C., through the South is favored by Representative Grant M. Hudson of the Sixth district of Michigan, who has announced that he will introduce a resolution with such a project in view.

His resolution will call upon the bureau of public roads to conduct an investigation into the feasibility of such an operation, and the route will be determined by experts of the bureau. Hudson said there will be one branch from the highway to Savannah. The ultimate destination will probably be Key West.

"Several great concrete arteries now converge in the national capital," he added. "There should be a wide highway to the West and Southwest, and the federal government should get behind it. It should be a national project."

To Study Land Values

Just what effect state highway improvement has on adjoining land values, and the proportions of road cost properly chargeable to passenger cars and trucks, are to be among the matters studied in a joint investigation of road conditions and factors to be made by the United States bureau of public roads and the Connecticut state highway department. The investigation is to include a study of tax laws and methods in force in various states.

Weather Lore of Esopus Indians

They Also Knew What Was Needed as Remedies and Imparted Their Knowledge to Early Settlers—Interesting Reminiscences of the Long Ago in Old Esopus.

They were talking of weather indications in an uptown law office one day this week. "These predictions," said an old fashioned lawyer, "relative to the character of the winter predicated upon the quantity of nuts stored by squirrels or the thickness and quality of the fur on a rabbit's back are delusive for the reason that few people actually see squirrels storing nuts, still fewer closely observe the character of the fur on a rabbit. Those who do, have but a fleeting view."

"My grandfather," continued the lawyer, "was born at Bontecoe in 1782, his father lived there when the Esopus Indians made the Rosendale Plains and the base of the Shawangunk mountains a camping ground. The Rosendale Plains produced beans in large quantities, the valley of the Walkkill was a great corn-growing section. My grandfather's father cultivated friendly relations with these Indians, they taught him carefully to observe the cloud formations during June, July and August, telling him that if in those months large masses of woolly cumulus clouds floated through the sky from the northwest to the northeast, the following winter would be one of much snow. They called these clouds snow clouds. Also they told him that if the song birds left early in the autumn the winter would be long and cold, and if they dropped from the eaves of the old Dutch houses and barns in large quantities, the winter would last two moons from the disappearance of the last sheet of ice."

"My grandfather taught me this Indian lore. Last summer when I was automobiling through New England, I noticed nearly every sunny day great volumes of cumulus clouds floating from the north west to the northeast. Everybody must have noticed the early departure of the song birds. The robins seemed to take flight in a single night late in September, so I made a memorandum on the 21st of September that we would have a long winter with plenty of snow. The Indians told that the Manitou (the Great Spirit) sent these clouds in the summer, and took the songbirds away early in the fall so that the Indians would know it was necessary to store great quantities of beans and corn. You will remember that during the Second Esopus War at the great Indian fort at Shawangunk, an immense cache of corn and beans was found."

"These Indians also taught the medicinal virtues of herbs and barks. When I was a boy I used to gather for my grandmother witch hazel, elecampane, cumfrey, stramonium, hepatica and mullein. Witch hazel my grandmother boiled and made what we now know as Pond's Extract; elecampane and cumfrey were used as poultices for bruises and wounds. Stramonium combined with sheep's tallow, made the finest salve for burns that I have known; mullein leaves were smoked for asthma and hepatica combined with honey was a sovereign remedy for colds."

"My grandfather used to take me into the woods Saturday and Sunday afternoons, and tell me about the Indians, about the herbs, barks of trees and their medicinal virtues. My grandmother made marvelous birch beer of aromatic birch, sassafras root, princess pine, wintergreen and brown sugar."

"Now," said the lawyer, "it would be a good plan for the Boy Scouts to take up this practical feature of nature study which not only would be interesting, but educational."

Test for Building Metals

An interesting discovery of the United States bureau of standards is that portions of metal exposed to ultraviolet light may become tarnished while the other portions remain bright. It is suggested that this increased atmospheric action may give a method for indicating the liability of metals to corrode.

BOY SEES HIS OWN FUNERAL

Parents Return From the Cemetery to Find Him Alive.

Atlanta, Ga.—A freckled-faced boy, whose cheeks are streaked with perspiration, or maybe it is tears, stands in the center of a throng of mourners who have just returned from laying his body to rest in the family plot.

He wears a pleading expression, as if attending one's own funeral on foot was something to be forgiven for.

Directly in front of the lad stand his father, a big man in somber black; near is a woman who has lifted her mourning veil and is gazing at the boy's drooping shoulders out of eyes in which hope and fear are mingled. An aged man placed a trembling, questioning hand on the boy's arm. A second of tense silence and then the father speaks:

"Johnnie, where the devil have you been?"

That's exactly what he asked, even if the soil from the newly made grave for "Johnnie" still clung to his shoes.

John W. Hinton is a lad of fifteen. But, despite his youth, he has seen that which millions of men have failed to see—he has watched his own funeral train on its way to the grave.

And having been an onlooker at the last dread rites solemnized in his own honor, John is none the worse for one of the most singular experiences that ever befell a human being; one that is still talked of and marveled at in Atlanta, Ga., where John lives.

How It Happened.

How Johnnie Hinton came to be mourned for dead by his family and friends as the result of a marvelous physical similarity and of another boy's desire to promote a trivial love affair; how he was supposed to have been the central figure at an elaborate funeral, and how he "came back to life" involves a weird combination of coincidences.

This strange case of mistaken identity is an actual event in the lives of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Hinton of 115 Pulliam street, Atlanta, and their error was shared by no fewer than 300 relatives and playmates who knew John Hinton intimately, but who fell victim to the amazing physical similarity.

A short time ago young Hinton disappeared from his home in Atlanta. In view of the fact that on former occasions he had left home for short visits to relatives without giving notice of his departure, his parents at first entertained no anxiety over his absence.

But as days went by and no news was received from him, Mr. and Mrs. Hinton grew apprehensive and appealed to the Atlanta police.

The search had been on for two or three days when authorities at Cartersville, Ga., telegraphed that a boy who answered to the description of young Hinton had been killed by a train near that city. In the same accident a youthful companion of the slain boy had been injured.

Identified by Parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Hinton and Mrs. Hinton's father, J. C. Cox, made a flying trip to the scene of the accident. They were conducted to the morgue, where lay the body. The shrouding sheet was removed from the form of the youth, and the mother, the father and the grandfather gazed in an agony of anticipation.

"It's Johnnie," whispered Mrs. Hinton at the first glance, and tender hands supported her as she poured out her grief.

"My son, my son," was all that the father said, but the few words carried a bitter load of sorrow and the tall man's body was convulsed with racking sobs.

Grandfather Cox at first thought there might be a mistake, but even he was convinced when a scar similar to one on Johnny's forehead was noted. He gave up arguing that they should wait until the other boy injured in the accident was able to talk more. This lad had said the dead boy was a stranger he had met a day or so before.

The funeral was arranged to take place in the Hinton burial ground near Bogart, Ga., and there the body was taken by the mourning family and friends.

A hearse awaited the body at Bogart, and as it started on its journey to the cemetery, Johnny arrived, but too late to overtake it.

He had left home to visit a cousin who lived 20 miles from Bogart in a rural community, intending to be gone two or three days. But he found his surroundings unusually pleasant and had lingered without notifying his parents of his whereabouts.

No newspapers came to the house, and he and his cousin's family were ignorant of the search that was being prosecuted for him and of the mistaken identification of the dead boy in Cartersville. His first intimation of the true state of affairs came when another cousin who lived in Bogart came to the home to acquaint its occupants with the sad fate of young Hinton.

Starts Mad Ride.

Informed that his funeral was scheduled at Bogart within a few hours, the boy commandeered a vehicle and started on a mad ride over the country roads in the hope that he might arrive in time to halt the obsequies. But in this he was disappointed, for as he drove down the last long slope to the little town he saw the train halt at the station and witnessed his own funeral train move solemnly away to the burial grounds.

Thus it happened that while Mr. and Mrs. Hinton were consigning to the grave what they believed to be the body of their slain son, the boy—alive and well—impetuously awaited their return to the station; weary and travel-stained and intensely excited over the realization that members of his family were suffering acute agony at thought that they were burying his body.

The impressive services concluded at the graveside, Mr. and Mrs. Hinton and Mr. Cox drove slowly and sadly back to the station to catch the train to Atlanta. Bowed with the burden of their grief, they reached the station and started to dismount.

Back From the Dead.

When there standing at the side of their automobile they saw their son—the boy whom they thought they had only a few moments before consigned to the tomb.

Imagine the scene that ensued. The frightened central figure in the recent funeral wasn't able to explain how such a set of circumstances as he had just experienced might actually be decreed by fate, but contented himself with loudly protesting that the veracity of his claims to existence were not of a nature to be questioned.

The case of John Hinton thus disjoined of, police authorities turned their attention to ascertaining the true identity of the boy whose body had been laid to rest in the Hinton burial plot.

Horace Baglery, the injured youth, had recovered, and under questioning revealed why he had not cleared up the mystery earlier.

The boy who was killed was Colin Harris, his name, and the pair had run away to see the world. Singletary was in love with Harris' sister and after the accident he was afraid he would be blamed for the double runaway and consequently would be "queered" with Miss Harris. So he kept quiet, hoping that the mistake in identity would never be known. But Johnny blasted his hopes by "coming back from the dead."

Artificial Larynx Will Restore Mute's Speech

New York.—Use of an artificial larynx to restore speech to mute persons, which recently was pronounced practicable after tests made at Johns Hopkins university, in Baltimore, was given a demonstration for the first time at the Vanderbilt clinic here.

Three men over fifty years old, who had lost the power of speech because of cancer and who had undergone special operations in order that the artificial larynx might be applied to them, were able to speak with varying degrees of distinctness.

The device is applied externally and consists of a pad strapped over an aperture in the patient's neck at a spot where his windpipe terminates. From the pad a rubber tube leads to small mechanism placed in the mouth. Air forced from the lungs is set in vibration and the vibrations are carried through the tube, which resembles a pipe stem, into the speaker's mouth. There the vibrations are modulated in much the same manner as if they were produced in the throat.

The instrument, it is said, would remove a barrier to the proper treatment of cancer of the throat. In the early stages of the disease, when a radical operation offers a practical certainty of cure, sufferers often have hesitated because they dreaded loss of voice. Delay has usually allowed the disease to progress to a point where cure is impossible. With the fear of silence removed, sufferers no longer will risk their lives, but will have the cancerous tissues removed and do their talking with an artificial larynx.

Plan to Show Model of Parliament Houses

London.—The success which Queen Mary's doll's house achieved as a gatherer of funds for hospitals has encouraged three public men to commission a famous wood carver to build an oak model of the houses of parliament.

This will be constructed on a half-inch scale, 40 feet long, 3 1/2 feet wide and 15 feet high.

The carver estimates it will take five years to complete the model, which will occupy twenty-one men daily, two of these being expert carvers. The cost will approximate $225,000.

The foundation of the structure will be of oak, but the rest of the model will be of oak, and all the carving true to detail.

After exhibition in London, it is planned to take the model around the country, all proceeds going to hospital funds.

Aids Puzzle Fans

Baltimore.—For the use of crossword solvers the Baltimore & Ohio railroad has installed standard dictionaries on observation and club cars on all through trains on the main line. If the puzzle fans increase the company probably will provide dictionaries in cars on branch lines. It was said at the general offices.

Plans Novel Flight

Amsterdam.—An ambitious project of a world flight embracing all five continents is planned for early in 1926 by Lieut. G. A. Koppes, chief instructor at the Rooyersberg military air-drome.

An influential committee consisting of leading aeronautical and engineering experts, meteorologists and bankers has been formed to support the scheme.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

LACKING VISION

HE WHO trends in a beaten round, clings to ideas that have been worn threadbare, chooses to follow the lead of others, without investigation of their methods, is not destined by nature to paint a masterpiece, carve a living marble or rise beyond mediocrity in any one of the ordinary fields of human endeavor.

He lacks the fire, the spirit, the divine force that bespeaks mastery and magnificent achievement over space and material.

He is blind to the glorious heights forever calling to the original man or woman who possesses what the world calls vision.

James J. Hill visioned the slumbering wealth of the great Northwest and built a railroad that brought thousands of homes and millions of dollars to farmers, tradesmen and mechanics who sensed its keen perception, but knew not its meaning.

Vision is difficult to demonstrate in words, yet one word defines it—faith!

We can feel it in the personality of the man or woman who has it. We can sense its dynamic thrill in his or her voice. We are stirred to the heart-core by its magnetism and swept along by its invisible force as a flower is whirled downstream to remind the weeds in the regions that beauty, loveliness and grandeur are to be found in enduring abundance up among the hills and productive highlands.

The lifelong and heroic labors of the men and the women of vision are only efforts that count in the world's work; the only labor that endures and gives inspiration to the rising generation; the only labor that keeps the world safely on its upward course.

Our great museums of art and science would be bare were it not for the men and women of vision, who put forth their hands in God's name, march out into the unknown and dare and do, while the incompetent follow the beaten track with never a new thought nor even a new word.

We have but touched the crust of wonderful things that lie all about us in the air, in the sea, in the earth waiting for the men and women with vision to lay them bare and utilize them for the common benefit of mankind.

The great achievements of this age are destined to fade and wither before the grander things yet to come, seen even now by souls given vision by the Omnipotent. Give your vision full rein and drive on in faith.

Undreamed things await you. They shall be your heritage!

The Why of Superstitions

By H. IRVING KING

LOVE AND SHOES

PLACE the heel of one shoe upon the instep of the other for three consecutive nights before going to bed and you will dream of your future husband. That is a common superstition among New England folk. Possibly the superstition obtains also in other parts of the country. It is based upon the old idea of the substitution of the wife to the husband of which a superstition arose. It is symbolical. "Over Eden will I cast my shoe," says David when he threatened the substitution of the land of the Edomites.

In a pamphlet of the first part of the Seventeenth century it is mentioned as being an ancient custom that "When at any time a couple were married the sole of the bridegroom's shoe was to be laid upon the bride's head implying with what subjection she should serve her husband.

The symbolism is obvious, and in the ancient days when the position of the married woman was one of entire subjection to her husband, one shoe placed upon the top of another would suggest the idea of marriage. Now to primitive man what was associated in thought was associated in fact. Therefore, one shoe placed upon another had an actual connection with marriage by a phase of sympathetic magic. So when the New England girl arranges her shoes with the heels of one upon the instep of the other, the upper shoe represents her future husband's and the lower one her own. The power of sympathetic magic is set working and her future spouse appears to her in a dream.

Mother's Cook Book

Man may be the head of the family, but far better than that, woman is the heart of it.—Punch.

SOMETHING GOOD

THE following stew may be prepared of tame ducks when the wild are out of season:

Stew of Wild Ducks.

Cut up a pair or more of wild ducks as for fricassee, and let boil ten minutes in barely water to cover, with one onion and one carrot cut into slices. Remove the duck meat, drain, dredge with flour mixed with salt and pepper and cook in a little hot fat until brown. Meanwhile add to the water in which the duck was parboiled, a minced shallot, and a bunch of sweet herbs; then put in the brown pieces of duck, cover closely and cook for two hours or until tender. Remove the duck, thicken the liquid with browned flour, one cupful of cream and one well-beaten egg. Stir until the egg is set, pour over the duck meat, garnish with curled celery and slices of lemon.

Sweet Pepper Souffles.

Cut the membranes and remove them and the seeds from four sweet peppers, then parboil. Put through a meat chopper, mix with two table-spoonfuls of fine crumbs, three table-spoonfuls of flour, blended with an equal quantity of cream, stirred into the slightly beaten yolks of two eggs. Season with one-half teaspoonful of salt, a little pepper and a pinch of poultry seasoning. The whole should be as thick as a stiff batter. Add two well-beaten egg whites. Place at once in greased individual molds, or in paper cases, filling them two-thirds full. Bake in a hot oven until well puffed.

For a pretty dessert fill individual pastry shells with whipped cream which has been mixed with a few table-spoonfuls of preserved strawberries. The fresh ones, of course, are preferable when they can be obtained.

FAMOUS FORTS IN U. S. HISTORY

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

The Fort That Saw Two Decisive Battles

Few forts can claim the distinction of having had a part in two decisive battles in American history. Yet Fort St. Philip in Louisiana has the right to that claim. It was built in 1814 as a defense for New Orleans at a bend in the Mississippi some 65 miles below that city.

After Gen. Andrew Jackson's victory at New Orleans, a part of the British fleet bombarded Fort St. Philip for five days but failed to reduce it. The American loss was only two killed and seven wounded, a fitting conclusion to "Old Hickory's" great victory, which was remarkable in the fact that he lost only eight killed and 13 wounded as compared to the British loss of 700 killed and 200 taken prisoners.

At the opening of the Civil war Louisiana state troops seized Fort St. Philip and its sister stronghold, Fort Jackson, (built between 1824 and 1825) on the other side of the river. They mounted 75 guns on Fort Jackson. 40 on St. Philip, stretched a chain across the river below Fort Jackson and played a fleet of 15 vessels above the two forts. With these defenses they belittled New Orleans safe from any attack.

In March, 1862, Commodore David Farragut attacked on the Mississippi with a fleet of 45 vessels, bearing more than 200 guns, and orders to take New Orleans. For six days the gunnery shells of Commodore D. D. Porter bombarded the two forts without much apparent success.

Then Farragut decided to try to run past the forts, an undertaking which the Confederates considered sheer madness. Early in the morning of April 24 Farragut started up the river and through a perfect storm of shot and shell from the forts, the fleet, with the exception of three vessels, safely made its way. The Confederates' ships were destroyed and no Navy

1 New Orleans was in the possession of the Union forces.

In the meantime Porter kept up the bombardment of the two forts and with the co-operation of troops under Gen. B. F. Butler, compelled the Confederate Gen. J. K. Duncan with his force of 700 men in each fort to surrender on April 28. Farragut's loss in this affair was only 37 killed and 147 wounded. His was one of the most brilliant feats of the war and when Fort St. Philip and Fort Jackson surrendered it marked the beginning of the chain of events which enabled Abraham Lincoln to write "The Father of Waters now flows unvexed to the sea."

RADIO

(Edited by G. Douglas Wardrop, Editor of Radio Merchandising)

Application of Above Method of Tuning the Grid Provides Tonal Quality That Equals the Crystal, Its Inventor Claims.

A tuned, open grid circuit, arranged so that high frequency current may pass into the grid and thus eliminate objectionable noises occasioned when low frequency or rectified current passes into the grid, is claimed by Charles Kosnick, of New York City, in an application for a patent. Benefits said to be derived from the arrangement include a set that is non-radiating, sensitive, selective and remarkably free from distortion. An added advantage is the low cost of construction.

Description of Circuit.
Mr. Kosnick's patent description of his circuit follows:

Referring specifically to the drawing, the vacuum tube which is shown at V is of the three electrode type, the plate being indicated at P, the filament at F and the grid at G.

The plate P is connected in circuit with the usual battery and connected in this circuit are phones or receivers P1, while the fixed condenser C2 is connected across the circuit from one side of the phones P1 to the minus of the B battery.

The filament F is connected in circuit with an A battery and included in this circuit is a rheostat R, by means of which current to the filament may be controlled. The filament and plate thus receive low frequency current.

The grid G is connected in an open circuit with tuning elements, herein shown as a variometer V1, with a variable condenser C connected across the plate, the grid of the tube V, one side of the variometer being connected to the aerial A1. The opposite side of the variometer is connected with the grid G and included in this connection is a fixed condenser C1 and a grid leak L. The plate circuit is connected to the ground shown as G1 in diagram. How Distortion is Eliminated.

It will be apparent from the foregoing description and accompanying drawing that high frequency current entering the circuit through the tuning elements will pass into the grid G, and as the circuit provides no grid return, such as is usually connected from the filament F to the resistance or variometer V1, no rectified or low frequency current will pass into the grid. This arrangement will eliminate objectionable noises commonly found in closed receiving circuits, will provide increased sensitiveness, strong and clear signals and will eliminate radiation. All of these advantages are due to the fact that there is no electric connection between the grid and plate. While the tuning elements in the circuit are shown as a variometer and variable condenser, it is obvious that other tuning elements may be substituted.

Right to Make Changes.
The invention is susceptible of various changes in its form, proportions and minor details of construction and the right is herein reserved to make such changes as properly fall within the scope of the appended claims, ends the patent description.

The principal advantage of this circuit lies in its tone quality equaling that of a crystal detector. The tuning is fair and the excellent reception compensates for the lack of sharp tuning. Local stations, however, are easily separated.

Parts needed include the following: Variometer 600 meters capacity. Variable condenser five plate. Tubes 201 A or U. V. 199 are suitable.

Grid leak is unnecessary. Fixed condenser capacity .001 makes circuit non-radiating, but reduces the signal strength, therefore is conditional. Radiation is slight without condenser.

Amplifier of any type may be added to this circuit.—New York Mail.

Important Improvement in Headphone for Radio

The radio headphone, though retaining many of the original principles, is being constantly improved to increase its sensitivity and electrical efficiency. Mechanical improvements are constantly being made to get the receiver as light as possible and to increase its strength and durability.

The whole secret of good headphones lies in the accuracy to which the air gap between the tip of the pole pieces and the diaphragm is adjusted. The distance between the diaphragm and each of the pole-piece tips must be the same and of the correct proportion so that the maximum volume may be had without distortion.

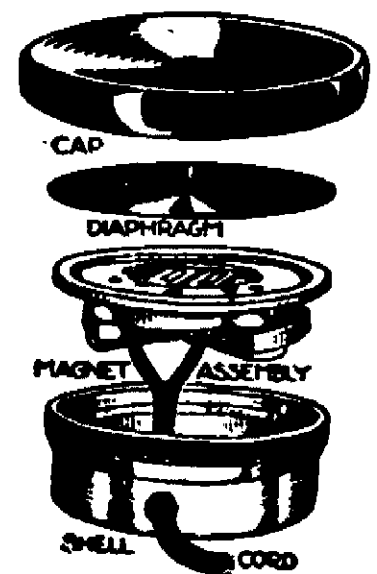

In the earlier type of headphone the magnets and coils were assembled on the inside of the back of the receiver case. The outside edges of the disks. This added considerably to the weight of the receiver.

An improvement has been designed by Maj. Herbert H. Frost, United States signal corps reserve, in the method of mounting the magnets and the pole pieces which eliminates the uncertainty of the diaphragm adjustment and permits the use of a much lighter receiver shell.

The magnets and the pole pieces are mounted on a strong aluminum stamping that has a flange for supporting and seating the diaphragm. In this manner the distance between the diaphragm and the tip of the pole pieces is always the same, within a very slight variation either way. The tips of the pole pieces can then be slightly ground down so that the distance is practically identical in every receiver. The ends of the phone cords are then attached directly to the coils and the whole thing inserted in the receiver case, much like the assembly of a watch.

The earpiece screws into the case and the magnet assembly and diaphragm are securely held in place. The troublesome nuts and connections for the headphones on the back of the case are eliminated and the chances for leakage of energy across the bushings, where the connections are brought through from the inside of the case, are done away with.

Showing the Various Parts of the Receiver.

phragm then rested on the edge of the receiver case, and the distance of the diaphragm from the pole-piece tips depended on the firmness of the receiver shell. With the best of machinery and manufacturing methods the receiver shell cannot be made accurate enough to insure that the distance of the air gap will be uniform.

Another disadvantage of this method of construction was that the case had to be made extra strong to hold the weight of the magnets and coils. The inner surface of the case had to be absolutely true and each side of the magnet drawn down evenly to the inside of the case with the mounting

Try Switching Tubes to Increase Efficiency

You may be able to get an increase in efficiency equal to as much as 30 to 35 per cent by merely switching the tubes around in the different sockets in your set.

First tune in a signal, and then take two of the tubes from the sockets and reverse them, putting them each in the other's socket.

Keep on doing this in various combinations until you hit on the particular combination that gives you the best results.

Long Aerial Necessary for Your Crystal Set

A crystal detector set should have a long aerial for the crystal detector coil exclusively on the strength of the incoming signal for its operation, as it has no local battery to assist it. The sound heard in the telephone are the strength of the actual signals coming through after compensation by the crystal. The longer the aerial is which carries the signal, the better the results should be as the crystal detector.

HIDE THE AMATEUR RADIO BEHIND A PRETTY SCREEN

"AS MR. SPARKS LEFT IT"

If that complicated amateur radio set mars the appearance of your living room, here's a way to hide it and keep everyone happy.

Many a tidy home-maker knows to her sorrow that a knowledge of interior decorating is not a requirement for success as a radio enthusiast. Even the most selective of amateur super-whats-you-may-call-them radio book-ups is far from decorative in a cozy living room or dainty dining room. Yet nine times out of ten the family radio fan plants his formidable looking electrical research laboratory right in the most conspicuous place in the home.

Radio Widowhood

His wife can't very well banish this array of technical hardware. To do so would be to court a state of radio widowhood. A golf widow may see her husband after sundown, whereas a radio enthusiast knows no hours.

Then, too, to dismiss the radio from the room in which the family naturally congregates would deprive you of many an enjoyable entertainment. For, after all, radio programs are intensely interesting and varied; they have much of merit for everyone in the family. Unattractive to the eye as many a radio contraption may be, not to have the advantage of the radio programs would be a positive hardship, even more so than the constant necessity of seeing an unsightly contrivance in a place where you would prefer something more ornamental.

Don't think of touching anything by way of tidying up! You would be almost certain to disturb some delicate adjustment.

Make a Screen

A very attractive screen, covered and decorated to harmonize with the general color scheme of the room, can be easily made by the use of a small wooden or wire frame over which suitable fabric is stretched, fastened by the best quality liquid glue. To assure a neat and permanent joining let the glue become almost dry before applying it to the fabric.

If you find it a problem to make the frame for the screen, it is entirely possible that you can get just about the size frame you want at the store. Failing in this, for you may require a unique size that is not obtainable, why not enlist the services of the man who made your family radio? To make a suitable frame will be child's play for him. Think of the mechanical difficulties he has already overcome making his radio set.

Express Yourself

When a heavy wire frame is used, wind the wire with seam binding of appropriate color, fastened with a touch of liquid glue, before covering.

The size of your radio screen would depend on how large an electrical display you have to cover. Of course you will select colors to blend with the other room decorations. Free rein is given you for self-expression and that touch of your own personality so delightful in one's home. You will find the making of the screen so interesting, and that there are so many possible varieties of appropriate coverings, that the spirit will no doubt move you to recover your screen quite frequently, thus adding a touch of freshness to your room with surprisingly little effort.

By use of this screen the multitude of tubes, assorted batteries and tangled wires can be heard at will, but need not be an eyesore when not in use.

Mitchell Charges Air Inefficiency

Both Army and Navy Departments
Have Deliberately Hindered Air Bombing Experiments, He Tells Congressional Committee.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, Feb. 6.—Bill-General William Mitchell took the lid off the aircraft investigation today with a bang and clatter that shook official Washington.

Bringing his fight for a greater air service into the open, General Mitchell charged flatly that not only are the war and navy departments inefficiently conducting their air services,
but that the navy department deliberately hindered the air bombing experiments conducted by the joint army-navy air services off the Virginia Capes in 1921.

General Mitchell's charges were laid before the special congressional committee that is investigating the aircraft situation. They also were contained in a letter which the "Flying General" sent of Secretary of War Weeks, in reply to Weeks's recent demand that Mitchell "explain" some of his recent statements on the air service.

General Mitchell intimated that some of the witnesses before the committee have told untruths to it concerning air craft.

"I believe," he said, "that there has been woeful ignorance and in some cases plain distortion of facts, by some of the witnesses before this committee, tending to confuse the country and congress."

Mitchell defied tradition and precedent by tearing aside the veil of secrecy that for several years has shielded the bombing tests off the capes in which old warships have been sunk by aerial bombs.

These tests were conducted to determine the value of air attacks against battleships.

"In my opinion the navy actually tried to prevent our sinking the Olympic," Mitchell said. "The whole performance (referring to the handicaps) was absolutely unnecessary," he said. "And in the minds of the air officers participating, appeared to be a deliberate attempt to handicap us."

Reciting the alleged hindrances
the "Flying General" declared the air service was ordered to bombard the battleship from an altitude of 10,000 feet.

"This was done in spite of the fact that such altitudes are not necessary nor expedient in an attack by air craft. In spite of all this, our pilots flew these ships, went to 10,000 feet, delivered the attack, and made a splendid percentage of hits."

Mitchell then charged both the army and the navy departments with deliberately attempting to hinder the development of air craft as a means of national defense.

No Reduction in State Income Tax

Necessity of Paying $10,000,000
More Toward Support of Schools, Prevents The Granting of Tax Reduction.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Albany, Feb. 6.—Decision by the Republican leaders of the Legislature to have the state pay $10,000,- 000 more toward the support of schools means that a reduction of 25 per cent in the state income tax will not be granted this year. It was declared at the Capitol today.

The financial condition of the state will not permit it to assume an additional responsibility for the schools and at the same time carry out recommendations of Governor Smith that the income tax be reduced again this year. The Republican leaders say they would like to do both but they believe the school problem is more acute than the income tax reduction.

"We have made up our minds to have the state pay $10,000,000 more toward the support of schools and this means we cannot grant a general decrease in the income tax this year," Speaker McGinnis of the Assembly
said today. "We would like to do both but the financial condition of the state will not permit."

The income tax was reduced 25 per cent last year at the request of Governor Smith. In his annual message to the 1925 legislature the governor made a similar request.
The reduction granted last year saved the income taxpayers of the state about $8,000,000.

Many upstate cities are now on the verge of bankruptcy because of the constantly growing cost of education and this, more than anything else, prompted the Republican legislative leaders in their decision to have the state pay more toward the cost of the schools. It is expected that during the next fiscal year the state will spend in the neighborhood of $60,000,000 for education.

The state board of regents recently suggested to the Republican leaders in the legislature that the state increase its appropriations for education to the extent of $40,000,- 000. This was too large an amount and could not be done, the leaders said, unless the direct state tax on real estate was increased.

"We feel that real estate is more than bearing its burden of taxes today and we are opposed to saddling any more on it," said Lieutenant Governor Seymour Lowman. "We want to do everything we can, however, to help out the cities that are on the verge of bankruptcy because of the high cost of education."

If it had not been for the school situation the income tax would have been reduced again this year. Republican leaders said.

Explaining It

Perhaps it's called a common cold because it's common to all sorts and conditions of men.

Colds Fever Be Quick-Be Sure

millions now comply with it. The utmost

Accessories Are in Great Variety

Glittering Trinkets Are of Attractive Materials
and Gay Colors.

Accessories appear to grow in importance and variety, as if one could not have enough of them. Wherever one sees the smartly dressed woman nowadays, writes a correspondent in the New York Times, one sees at her hand a vanity case, purse, bag, cigarette case or holder, and often a lipstick in its ornamental separate carrier. The materials of which these different trinkets are made are charming in color. Shell rimmed in silver is shown in a great assortment of small articles, from the toilet fittings for a traveling bag to the slenderest, most elegant cigarette holder. Jade or translucent composition in jade color is enchanting, either with silver mounting or set with brilliant. Amethyst, clear amber, coral and always onyx
with crystal are among the attractive novelties.

In this season of garish and almost barbarous ornamentation in dress, the styles in jewelry, trinkets, baubles of every sort are endless in variety. The closer necklace is the fad of the moment. The smartest necklaces are made of beads of enormous size, imitation pearls in different colors, gar-lands, blue and black. Many contrivances are invented, strands of pearls in graduated sizes being hung from the tight-around choker, worn in the front or at the back of the neck in absurd elaboration.

Bracelets grow in popularity, and any one of many styles is fashionable.
One may wear several slender bangles,
either the colored glass, the goldflecked crystal, gold or platinum, or one bracelet. A pair in some quaint design like those worn in the '80s is considered very chic. Some of these have lovely cameo set on them, or oddly twisted gold, set with stones in old-fashioned patterns. Turquoise, garnets and seed pearls are often set seen in these. The lovely old wide bracelet set with seed pearls is growing more and more rare, and is much prized by the women who go in for
"period" costumes.

Gloves are drawing flattering attention to fashionable hands. The grandest style of glove is so generally worn that few street gloves of any other sort are seen. Invariably the cuff is a circular or plaited, narrow ruff, pinked, perforated or embroidered.
And it is modish now to wear the cuff turned down over the hand, for which reason it is lined to give an ornamental effect.

All of the new gloves are stitched in contrasting color, and in these the belges, tans and browns are especially stylish. Black and white is smart, as always, gloves of each being stitched heavily with the other.

Fancy giving importance to the heel of a shoe. That is what is done in the present mode, heels of evening shoes being as thickly studded with jewels as are the bandeaus for the hair or the very ornate and costly purse bags that look like handbags of precious stones.

Sports Model Designed for Spring and Summer

This attractive sports model of green and white plaid was one of the smart modes shown at the recent spring and summer review of the Style Creators of America.

New Neckline Is V-Shaped

An outstanding note of fashion is the V-shaped neckline, frequently collarless. In several groups the V is plain in front, while a little standing collar appears in back. For formal wear the V becomes a deeply cut decol-lete in back and front, modified by a flat piece of matching or contrasting fabric that gives an almost square line.

Good Sewing Hint

When mending hems and even on a cotton dress that is in very frequent use in the washings try sewing the edges on the outer flap and the hems on the underflap, wrong side up. This will permit the dress to be ironed more completely on the outer side.

Recognition

Nothing delights so much as the acknowledgment of the citizen when they are admitted to the ranks of those who live with us and protect themselves in abundance as fast as is possible—

Adventurers Lured to Their Fate in Mexico

Senora, Mexico, was the objective of a number of filibustering expeditions prior to William Walker's famous invasion of Nicaragua. In fact, Walker was on his way to Senora
when stopped in Lower California.
The failure of many bold adventurers to pick up bushel baskets of gold in California in the days of 1849 sent them rampaging in every direction, and Senora presented a special lure because it was an old settled region, and marvelous tales were told of its mineral wealth.

Two Frenchmen of noble birth who were stranded in California successfully endeavored to carve out an empire from this supposed El Dorado,
and both lost their lives in the venture.

First came Marquis Charles de Pladry of Poitou, who set forth with 200 followers and was murdered in his sleep at Coahuila. Next came Count Gaston Reol de Roussat-Bourbon of Provence, who was executed by Mexican soldiers August 12, 1852.

It was a pity that the Roussat was not off before he brought his scheme of empire to fruition. He was a fanciful type of the soldiers of fortune, but he had a fatal weakness—he loved all beautiful and romantic women. The last one to receive his gallant devotion was a French girl named Marie, who was shot down
by his little army of 200 Americans.
After a valiant resistance the Americans were defeated and the Roussat captured.

"Alfred, my brave," he said to the French girl in a clear, cheerful voice.
"The year duty: Fire true—aim at the heart!"

A wily clerked, Count de Roussat was killed. See "Adventures Magazine."

Financial and Commercial

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Feb. 6.—After bidding
the oil, railroad and industrial stocks up to higher price levels today Wall Street traders sold the whole lot in another week end profit-taking movement which wiped out a good part of the gains acquired in the previous sessions of the week.

The oil stocks were the first to slump as offerings of independent and standard oil shares were supplied freely. In few cases did the losses from the high of the week exceed 2 points.

Another brisk forward movement of the railroad, oil, motor and equipment stocks was in progress immediately at the opening of the market. Gains from 2 to 10 points were made by some of the industrial leaders in this period. East Iron Pipe jumped 10 points to 183, a new high record for the year.

The rails continued to move forward with low priced shares like Chicago Great Western, Chicago and Eastern Illinois, Western Maryland,
etc. in the lead. New York Central and Southern Pacific responded to favorable traffic reports.

Rumors that Universal Pipe and Radiator seven per cent preferred would be retired at par led to heavy demand for that stock, which sold at $7 1/2, a new high. Equipment stocks, tire and rubber and some of the copper stocks were unaffected by the selling wave. Coppers sold higher in sympathy with the stiffening of the copper market and the wide predictions of 16 cent copper within a few weeks.

The tobacco stocks came in for considerable attention in the fourth hour, with Tobacco Products leading this group. When call money was marked up to 3 1/2 per cent selling was renewed in some of the high priced stocks, but liquidation was orderly and prices declined moderately at without confusion.

Accused of Killing Wife and Two Children

RUSSELL MORTON, STATE'S ATTY. HUSTER, MRS. MORTON & MORTON HOME.

After the bodies of his wife and two daughters had been found with their throats cut, Russell Morton, twenty-eight, was locked up in the Cumberland, Md., jail, charged with their murder. Morton is shown above being questioned by State's Attorney William A. Huster. The murder of Mrs. Morton and her daughters took place in their little home in Paradise, Maryland, and their bodies were buried in a lonely spot in the mountains near Cumberland. Morton is said to have been an active member of a religious sect, and that arguments on religion caused differences between him and his wife.

NORTH AMERICAN BEASTS WERE KILLED BY BLIGHT

Professor Stauffer Refuses to Believe That Prehistoric Mammoths Died of Natural Causes.

Minneapolis, Minn. — Mammoths and mastodons, numbering thousands, which once roamed the western plains of America, penetrating to Alaska and as far east as New York, died under the blight of some mysterious power of nature, something that the science of man has not yet been able to discover, according to Prof. Clinton R. Stauffer, geologist at the University of Minnesota.

Not only the elephants of North America, but the horse and the fierce saber-toothed tiger, his early contemporaries, died and vanished in a way that has not been explained.

Three natural assumptions, that they died because of climatic changes; that their proper food vanished; or that man slew them must all be abandoned, Doctor Stauffer declares.

"At least some of these creatures lived into post-glacial times when the climate was much what it is now, and all could stand temperatures even colder than those of the modern age," says Doctor Stauffer. In the stomach of a mammoth found frozen in Siberia, where he had died, was a mass of vegetation such as still grows. He was the same type of animal that lived in North America.

"Primitive man lived when these creatures did, but with his small numbers and crude weapons, he stood as much in danger of them as they did of him. He did not slaughter them as his successors did the bison.

"The only modern parallel for such a disappearance in North America is that of the passenger pigeons. Man slaughtered these by the million, but it has never been established that this carnage alone caused their final extinction."

Doctor Stauffer inclines to the belief that a pestilence caused the disappearance of the mammoth, tiger and horse, although he sees no reason why all should have succumbed to the same disease, nor does he think they all passed at the same time. But they did all live at the same time, and all vanished, possibly 100,000 years ago.

The horse alone repopulated part of North America after escaping from Spanish invaders in the sixteenth century. He then proceeded to flourish greatly.

Since last summer when the discovery of several Jeffersonian elephants in Minnesota was reported by geologists, the number has increased to thirty. Formerly only about half that number had been known in Minnesota.

Spying Out German

Munitions No Sinecure

Berlin.—Of the various interrelated missions which have been functioning in Germany since the end of the war, there is one, at least, upon which positions are not eagerly sought. This is the military mission of control, whose duty it is to probe into Germany's military activities and see that no arms are being manufactured beyond the limits provided by the treaty of Versailles. There have been many unpleasant incidents when official visits were made to the fortresses and ammunition plants.

Since the commission began its work in 1919, some 908 official visits have been paid to quarters connected one way or another with the German army. As the coming of the commission members is known to the German officials at least forty-hours in advance, the news generally is in possession of the residents of the district where the inspection is to take place. Nearly always menacing crowds assemble, and the police have to be called to disperse the agitators, who often threaten to do the foreigners bodily harm.

Aboriginal Ohio Temple Pictured to Scientists

Washington, D. C.—The most important aboriginal temple in the United States was built by prehistoric mound builders in and around the present site of Portsmouth, Ohio. The ten miles of embankments still traceable there represent various heavenly bodies, including sun, moon, stars and banks which accurately reproduce the form of the "seas" on the moon, used in an ancient sky worship. Such are the conclusions presented to the American Association for the Advancement of Science by Stansbury Hagar, secretary of the council of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences.

The main avenue formed by parallel embankments 100 feet apart and 4 feet high and 20 feet wide begins in Kentucky and extends across the Ohio river and presents the form of a serpent. Mr. Hagar pointed out that objects excavated from other mounds showed the influence of Mexican and Maya culture, in which the serpent was extensively used as a religious symbol.

The only serpent temple which compares with the Portsmouth mounds, Mr. Hagar said, is that of Karnak, in Brittany, which is 11 miles long.

Tree Is Freak

Fairfax, Va.—J. R. Waltrip has discovered a tree on his farm that bears both walnuts and waterberries. About 30 inches from the ground the tree divides and the branches on one side produce walnuts and the others waterberries on them. The tree is an old one and has been on the farm for many years.

MANDRELL-TERRIS BOUT ATTRACTING LARGE CROWD

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 6.—Early prospects were that Madison Square Garden would bulge to the exits tonight for the 12 round meeting between Sid Terris, New York's dancin' fool and Sammy Mandell, so-called sneek of Rockford, Ill., leading contenders for the vacated lightweight title. The boys are the headliners of the State Athletic Commission's lightweight elimination tourney, to begin later this month, and their bout tonight will serve as an unofficial eye opener for the action to come.

Local sports have installed Terris a slight favorite because of his superior speed. The middle-west, however, has tipped the scales in favor of Mandell, the belief in that section being that his superior ruggedness will earn him the verdict. Every reserved seat was sold two days ago.

Terris and Mandell met once before about a year ago but the question of supremacy was not decided, the judges voting the affair a draw.

WILLIE HOPPE, BILLIARD CHAMPION, TO BROADCAST

Radio billiard fans will have an opportunity to hear Willie Hoppe, world balk-line billiard champion, "on the air" Saturday night, February 7, at 8:30 eastern time, over radio station W4Z, New York. Hoppe who has held the cue title for 15 consecutive years, will be at the microphone, cue and all, promptly at the time designated, and will not only give the followers of the green cloth some tips on the rudiments of the game, but will also tell his invisible audience about some of his difficult shots and the inside secrets of winning a billiard championship. Hoppe's radio talk will be of especial interest at this time the world over because of the fact that he is now training for the International Billiard Tournament, which is to be held in Chicago February 23 to March 4. Four nations will be represented in this title match—America, Germany, Belgium and Japan.

THIRTY-TWO GOING SOUTH WITH BROOKLYN TEAM

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 6.—Thirty-two players will be taken south to the training camp of the Brooklyn Dodgers at Clearwater, Fla., according to plans announced today by officials of the club. Out of these, pitchers will number sixteen, the catchers four, infielders seven and the outfielders five. They will report to Manager Robinson on February 28.

Ten exhibition games will be played at Clearwater with the Browns, Phillies, Senators and Yankees, after which the club will take the road with the Yankees, playing games at Jacksonville, Montgomery, Birmingham, Nashville, Atlanta, Chattanooga, Knoxville, Asheville, Greenville, Charlotte, Richmond and Ebbets Field, Brooklyn.

MARTIN'S POWER OF SPEECH NOT RECOVERED

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 6.—Vincent "Pepper" Martin, Brooklyn lightweight boxer, had not recovered his power of speech this morning following the paralyzing of his motor system in a bout with Mike Ballerino at the Brooklyn Rink Arena last night in which Ballerino knocked out Martin in the eleventh round of a scheduled twelve round contest.

Physicians at the Cumberland street hospital, Brooklyn, where Martin was taken unconscious, said today the fighter was doing "fairly well" aside from his loss of speech. They said they did not expect the paralyzing to be permanent.

Effect of Light

Why silver tarnishes in the light and not when kept in a drawer, is that light has actinic, or chemical, properties. Another illustration of actinic light is to be found in a photographic plate or film. In darkness it does not change, but as soon as light reaches it, it becomes discolored.

National Game of Siam Is "Takraw"

"Takraw," the national game in Siam, is played with a six-inch wicker ball, which is tossed from player to player, touching everything but hands in its flight. Hands must not be used in passing, but heads, feet, knees and necks are permissible. The team making the greatest number of passes before the ball hits somebody's hands or the floor wins the match.

Collins and Killefer in Favor of Golf Playing

Golf for baseball players in training, frowned on by some major league team managers, meets with the approval of Eddie Collins and Bill Killefer, pilots, respectively, of the Chicago Americans and Nationals.

They look upon the game merely as a recreation, which might be an aid to a batting finish. In this they agree with Chester Horton, Chicago professional, who says the only danger is that it might make the ball player so enthralled in his recreation as to jeopardize his value in his chosen profession.

In golf and baseball the essentials of hitting the ball are the same—an easy stance and a good balance, according to Horton. He argues that the games are similar in that the player in each has the same objective—to hit a moving object on the diamond and a stationary object on the links.

A systematic study of golf as a means to improve a batting average is advocated by Chick Evans, holder of numerous championships.

Colt Bought for Nickel Now Is Sold for $3,700

Two years ago Pete Green, boy gelding, changed hands for a rusty nickel. Pete Green, now capable of clicking off a mile in 2:06½, has been sold a second time for $3,700. Walter Candler, an Atlanta horseman, announces.

The nickel was paid for the horse by Candler to Gus Coggins, another horseman, two years ago when Pete was three years old.

Coggins offered to give the horse to Candler with several other animals the millionaire sportsman was buying, but the latter refused to accept the gift without some remuneration. So a 5-cent piece changed hands and the horse went into the Candler stables.

Last fall Pete Green was a consistent winner in the Southeastern fair races.

Recently he was sold to J. C. Haley of Madison, Wis., at an auction sale in Chicago.

Tilden to Play Tennis or Write

Code Book Competitor From Covering Tournament—Decision of Tilden and Richards To Be Known Saturday.

(By Davis J. Walsh.)

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Feb. 6.—Within the next twenty-four hours William Tilden, rated the greatest lawn tennis player that ever served an ace, will decide whether the season of 1925 will see him continue as a competitor or proceed with the writing of masterpieces on and about the sport question.

His decision will be made tomorrow, following the annual meeting of the United States Lawn Tennis Association at which time the new amateur code will be offered for consideration and the good word is that Tilden will proclaim his retirement simultaneously with the adoption of the measure. Its passage is regarded as a formality.

Tilden sat on the special committee that drafted the compromise code. Yet it is understood that he is so far from satisfied with its terms that he will withdraw his name from the lists of American defenders of the Davis Cup to say nothing of those eligible for the national championships and all important tournaments at which the products of his pen might be deemed essential to the happiness of the reading public.

The new code says, in effect, that no player may "cover" under his signature any tournament in which he is a competitor. He may confine himself to expert views on this and that in an analytical vein but journalistic efforts upon the actual play will be taboo. This provision, according to the champion's friends, minimizes Tilden from important tournaments almost automatically.

His articles would cease just about the time they might be expected to reach their greatest selling appeal.

That Tilden should be a party, at least by inference, to the drafting of such a stringent interpretation came as a surprise to the tennis public, yet the fact that he sat on the committee that wrote the new code was taken as meaning that its terms were his own. The writer is assured that such is far from the case.

From this, it might be assumed that Tilden is resigned to his passing from the lists of competitive tennis, and therefore, rubber-stamped the resolution as the easiest way out of his difficulties.

If such was the case, he was of slight aid to Vincent Richards, runner up to Tilden in national ranking and a young man with more than an academic interest in the controversy. Richards also is a play-writer; in fact, has definitely chosen a journalistic career. He hardly is highly gratified with the terms of the treaty but has said nothing to date. Neither has Tilden. They probably will say it tomorrow.
